A Guide for finding the right style of beer for you

Amber

Amber beers are full bodied malt aromas with hints of caramel. These beers can be either lagers or ales.

Blonde

Blonde ales are very pale in color and tend to be crisps, dry and clear, with low-to-medium bitterness and aroma from hops and some sweetness from malt.

Brown

Dark amber or brown in color, brown ale have evidence of caramel and chocolate flavors and may have a slight citrus accent or be strong, malty or nutty, depending on the area of brewing.

Cream

A mild, sweetish, gold style of beer

Dark

Dark ale is a British type beer, combining hops, yeast, and a blend of malts. It is a medium chestnut brown color, with a delicate fruity smell and robust, malty character.

Fruit

Most fruit beers are ales, but do not carry an ale character. Malt flavor is not dominant and there is low bitterness level to the beer in order to allow the fruit flavor to come through.

Indian Pale Ale

The hoppier version of a pale ale

Light

Extremely light in color, mild in flavor, fewer calories, and lower alcohol content.

Pale

Pale ale has a fruity, copper-colored style.

Pilsner

Made with neutral and hard water. Tend to be golden, in color with dry, crisps, and somewhat bitter flavor.

Red

They are moderate to heavy in flavor and contain hints of caramel that is offset by the hop characteristics.

Sour

Sour beer is intentionally acidic, tart, and sour in taste.

Wheat

Wheat provides a soft character to beer and is sometimes hazy with a touch of spice. Light and easy to drink with very little aftertaste.
